

Building collaboration in groups and teams: Finding common ground

Eastbourne UK, June 5th and 6th 2023

For those working in community groups, public, third sector organisations and anyone collaborating to innovate and deliver services in challenging times and those curious about Systems-Centered work

With Rowena Davis and Annie MacIver

Differences and disagreements in work groups are often a challenge and can interfere with getting work done. SCT offers ways of working with differences so we can begin to hear the value in them and work productively together. Come and join us for two days to explore how to build teams and work productively in groups using a Systems-Centered (SCT) approach.

We will use the Systems-Centered conflict resolution method of functional subgrouping to discover what's helping and getting in the way of us working together. We will also explore real-life work challenges that participants bring. We will think together about predictable patterns that emerge in groups and what to do to move things forward.

We hope to have fun!

FEES:

By 24th April 2023:

Community groups, public and third sector organisations – £200

Others – £400

From 25th April 2023:

Community groups, public and third sector organisations – £225

Others – £450

If you are interested in attending and the fee is the main obstacle, please contact info@sctuk.org so we can work with you to find a way through this.

DETAILS:

sctuk.org/eb23