

Surviving and Thriving at Work – from Personalising to Seeing the Wider Context

Eastbourne UK, 15 & 16 May 2025, 09.00-16.30 GMT

Are you working in a context where there aren't enough resources or time to meet demand? Is it often hard to know what to do? Which situation to prioritise? Are you just about surviving? Fearful you might soon burn out? Are you consulting to organisations where this is reality?

With Rowena Davis and Annie MacIver

This workshop will explore the impact on our wellbeing and functioning of working in organisations under sustained pressure. We'll apply the Systems-Centered® idea of 'survival roles' – the de-fault places we all go to under stress – to learn more about our reactions and behaviours under pressure and discover alternative options.

Using the method of Functional Subgrouping, we'll practise strategies to regain self-regulation, reduce reactivity and reclaim our creativity and energy at work.

THIS WORKSHOP IS OPEN TO ALL

*Container training open to those who have completed SCT Intermediate Skills training.
To apply, email annie.maciver2@icloud.com for an application form.*

FEES:

By 28 March 2025:

Community groups, public and third sector organisations – £325
SCTRI members £425 | Container training £475 | Others – £525

From 28 March 2025:

Community groups, public and third sector organisations – £375
SCTRI members £475 | Container training £525 | Others – £575

If you are interested in attending and the fee is the main obstacle, please contact info@sctuk.org so we can work with you to find a way through this.

DETAILS:

sctuk.org/eb25